THE WEATHER.—Yesterday was a most beautiful day, sfter so stormy a night. The suu rose beautifully—not a cloud visible to obstruct the beauty of the sky. The ground was covered with snow to the depth of two inches, which shone practify in the sunlight. Towards night the sir became quite cold, and the snow and water on the side-walks commenced freezing, in many places rendering it dangerous to pedestrians. The snow in the streets had nearly disappeared before sunset.

Falsa Alama.—The alarm of fire at 5 o'clock yester-lay morning, was caused by the burning of some straw brown out of the house at the corner of Troy and Washington streets.

U. S. District Court, Feb. 1 — Before Judge Betts—This being the first day of the February term, after the court was opened, the panel of Grand Jurors was called over; a quorum not having answered to their names, the gentiemen present were discharged until to-morrow (thie) morning, when the Grand Jury will be sworn. A Petit Jury was then called and sworn, after which it was discharged until to-morrow. Admiralty cases were then taken up.

Oroundates Meuran and Cornelius Vanderbitt, libellants, vs. The schooner H. B. Fester, her carge, tackle.

Oroendates Mauran and Cornelius Vanderbilt, libeliants, vs. The schooner H. B. Fester, her cargo, tackle, dc. and owners.—The libel in this case was filed for salvage. It appeared that on the fisth of March last, the schooner arrived, on her homeward voyage from the West indies, inside Sandy Hook; after which it commenced to blow a gale, and she dragged her anchors and got on the West Bank, where she lay with the sea breaking over her. The captain and crew, after having out sway the mests, left her in one of the boats, and got on shore on some part of Long Island. The libeliants alleged that information had been conveyed to the city of the situation of the vessel; upon which they despatched their steambest Samson down to the bay to her assistance. The libel further alleged that it blew so hard, shore on some part of Long Island. The libellants alleged that information had been conveyed to the city of the situation of the versel; upon which they despatched their steamboat Samson down to the bay to her assistance. The libel further alieged that it blew so hard, and the see was so rough, that the people on board the seamboat could only see the schooner at intervals, and that it was at great peril and risk they got near her. They, however, succeeded in cutting her cables, taking her in tow and bring her, with her cargo, which consisted of sugar, rum and molasses, up to the city, without any further damage than the loss of her amchors, &c. The respondents filed their answer to the libel, and admitted that a storm had commenced immediately after the schooner had got inside the Hook; that she had dragged her anchors and got on the East Bank; that the masts were cut away and that the captain and crew had left her that evening; but they denied that they had bandoned her, or that she was deserted. They insisted that the captain and crew had left her to procure assistance, and with no o her view. The answer went on to state, that the libellants did not go down until next day, when the weather moderated, and that they approached her without difficulty or hazard, and that instead of hauling up her anchors which they might have done, they out her cables, by which her annhors and chains were lost to her owners. The answer went on further to state, that if the libellants were entitled to any thing, they were only entitled to be paid for towage, which was usually $10 to $15 an hour; that the claimants had offered to pay them at that rate, but they refused. The answer concluded by insisting that it was not a case of salvage, inasmuch as the verse, was not abandoned; that the captain and crew only went for help, and that the captain and crew only went for help, and that the value of a gold watch, chain, came the jury found a verdict against Villers, for $134 damages.

Police Intelligence.

Charge of False Prateness — Officers A. M. C. Smith and Patterson, of the lower police, arrested yesterday, on a warrant issued by Justice Caborne, a man by the name of Charles Stratton, wherein he stands charged with obtaining on the 37th of November last, a lot of furniture on a credit of four months, from Huntington and Linsey, asbinet makers, 381 Hudson street, by false and fraudulent representations, as alleged by the complainants. It appears that in order to procure this credit, the accused represented that he kept the Eagle Hotel, at No. 171 Canal street, and was worth $8000. clear of all debts and incumbrance, in property situated in Massachusetts, and did not owe a chilling in the world. On these statements, with other representations, Huntington and Linsey parted with their property; but shortly after the delivery, they discovered that a mortgage had been given on the 11th of November to one Asa B Stratton, on all the property said to belong to Charles Stratton, at No. 171 Canal street Another mertgage was likewise effected, in order to cover the bill of furniture obtained from the complainants. Consequently, upon this state of facts, Justice Octorne issued his warrant for the arrest of the accused on the above charge. We also understand that several more charges of the same nature, from different merchants in the city, will be made, from whom Stratton has obtained goods by false representations. Justice Osborne committed him to prison for a further hearing.

Watch Returns before Justice Osborne.—Officer Files, of the 3th ward police, brought before the magistrate yesterday morning, a Dutchman by the name of John Stradman on a charge made by his wife and daughter, whom he, the night previous, had threatened to kill. The stock market continues in a very unsettled state Some of the fancies are improving in prices, while others are falling off. At the first board to-day, Harlem advanced %; Long Island, %; Norwich and Worcester, %; Morris Canal, %; Canton, %; Farmers' Loan, %. Read-ing Railroad declined I per cent; Indiana 5's, 1; and Reading Bonds, 34. Treasury Notes remain without change in prices, with limited sales.

A bill was introduced in the Ohio House of Representatives on the 27th ult., to provide for the extinguishment of the State debt. It proposes that the auditor of the State shall levy annually a tax for the purpose of creating a sinking fund, as follows, viz: In 1848, $100.000; in 1849, $106,000; in 1850, $112,000; and so continuing annually to levy the sum of the preceding year with 6 per cent added thereto, until the amount so raised sufficient to discharge the whole amount of the reim-bursable debt of the state. The second section provides that the sums so levied shall be paid to the fund commissioners, to be by them invested and applied as they are now required by law to invest the sinking fund; and they are required to make such investment, if practicable, in the stock of Ohio or of the United States.

If the recent decision made by the Court of Appeal of Mississippi, declaring void the assignment made by the Commercial and Railroad Bank, in 1810, had been made five or six years ago, it would, indeed, have been a most disastrous blow to the interest of the stockholders But, in the present state of affairs, it cannot have any very injurious effect, as the objects for which the assigr . ment was made have been acquired, viz: To preserve the franchises, property, and effects of the bank; to hinder and delay creditors indefinitely, and allow time to collect and secure debts due to the bank, and to make advantageous arrangements as to the debts due by it. Having substantially consummated all this last summer the principal stockholders—the large individuacreditors, and the "Girard," "United States," and Phoe nix Banks, (these three banks being creditors for nearly four-fifths of the entire indebtedness) - subscribed s written agreement, under seal, by the terms of which their respective debts are to be cancelled, and the seve-ral creditors are to receive stock in lieu of their claims.

from the stockholders. After this arrangement, we think the institution would have been ready, even if the decision alluded to had never been made, to be yielded by the assignees, " back into the bands of the President, Directors, and Company, as it stood before the assignment."

Every thing depends upon the nature of our next advices from Great Britain, as regards shipments of breadstuffs to the United Kingdom. In the event of there having been a decline, there will be little probabil-ity of any extensive exportation until late in the spring, or early in the summer. In consequence of the stringency in the money markets of Grest Britain, and the ruinous influence of an extensive importation of foreign grain into the Kingdon, we have no doubt the consumption of the domestic supply will be more rapid than usual. Should such be the case, the domand for a foreign supply will not come until late in the season. The advantages of this to the consumers of Great Britain must be very great. In the first place, it prevents an early importation, and an exportation of specie, while it prevents any depreciation of prices. By putting off the importation of breadstuffs until late in the season, until the internal navigation of this country opens, they have the benefit of the low prices which will at that time-without doubt, rule in our markets, without interfering with the value of their own , as that will then be principally consumed. It is, certainly, their best policy to consume their own first, particularly when there is no doubt but that they can get all they want from the United States or other countries. Should there be a great influx of foreign grain in the ports of Great Britain, within the next sixty or ninety days, the exportation of specie would certainly commence with renewed vigor, and the revulsion would return upon them, and prove very disastrous; and we have no doubt every effort will be made by the corn dealers of England to prevent such a result. They can keep the markets so well supplied with corn that prices cannot advance sufficient to make shipments from this side profitable, so long as prices here rule as high as they now do; and while they check ship, ments, they can be consuming their own supplies. There is very little probability of prices in our Atlantic mar-kets falling much below rates now ruling; our home consumption is so large, and our communication with the interior to such a limited extent, that we see no prospect of any reduction until after the opening of naviga-tion, and the immense stocks stored in the Western States, are poured into our market; then, and we fear not till then, will the shipments to foreign ports be to any great extent.

It is astonishing with what rapidity our domestic consumption increases. The consumption of the section of country bordering on the Atlantic, is fully equal to our facilities for supplying it, with the existing means of ommunication with the interior. During the opening of navigation, we have not only the demand f r con sumption and exportation to supply, but we havelto accumulate a stock sufficient to meet these demands for elx months, when navigation is closed; and it is owing to our limited facilities, compared with the wants, that prices now rule so high in this and other seaboard markets, while there is such an abundance in the interior.

I was attacked with the liver complaint, which apparently brought me to the brink of the gave. During my sickness, I was attended by three physicians in our place, but necessed on help. I also tried the various remedies recommended for such complaints, but they afforded me to relief. As a last resort, I was per unded to try. Winter's Balasam of Wild Cherry, and by using four bottles. I was restored to better health than I have enjoyed before for tee years. This statement may be relied upon as strettly tree, B.E. 1882.
